Rasa ketidakpuasan tersebut juga boleh mendatangkan kesan-kesan yang negatif sama ada kepada individu mahupun organisasi. Adalah amat penting bagi pekerja mahupun majikan Muslim khususnya, untuk mempunyai kemahiran dalam mengurus emosi dan tekanan bagi menghindar sindrom ‘burn out’, kerana Islam tidak mengunjurkan umatnya untuk berputus asa dalam apa keadaan sekalipun, kerana Allah adalah Tempat Bergantung.

Objektif bengkel ini adalah untuk mendedahkan para peserta kepada tekanan dan ‘burn out’ di tempat kerja; memberikan kefahaman tentang tanda dan implikasi ‘burn out’ di tempat kerja; meningkatkan kemahiran peserta dalam teknik pengurusan emosi dalam menghindari ‘burn out’ di tempat kerja dan menjelaskan tentang kepentingan kesejahteraan spiritual dalam mengurus ‘burn out’ di tempat kerja.

THE workshop was held on 25–26 April at IKIM. Burnout is experienced not only among employees who are highly committed to working, but also among employees who always have a negative perception towards their work. The feeling of dissatisfaction can also have negative effects on both the individual and organisation. It is highly important for both the employee and particularly the Muslim employer, to have the skills in managing emotions and stress in order to avoid the burnout syndrome, as Islam does enjoin its adherents to give up on any situation, for Allah is The One whom we depend on.

The objective of the workshop was to expose participants to pressures and burnouts at the workplace; to give an understanding of the signs and implications of burnouts at the work place; enhance skills of participants in emotional management techniques to avoid burnout at the work place and to explain the importance of spiritual well being in managing burnouts at the work place.
